INTRODUCTORY

In presenting this, the twenty-sixth volume of the Sacramento City Directory, the publishers desire to thank all who have contributed to the success of the work, either by patronage or in co-operation in furnishing information.

POPULATION

The present volume contains by actual count 29,351 names, exclusive of married women, single girls who have no occupation, and children, and also Japanese and Chinese, a decrease of 1314 names over the preceding edition. Using the usual Directory multiple of 2½ this gives a population for Greater Sacramento of 73,378.

Respectfully,

THE SACRAMENTO DIRECTORY CO.

Jan. 5, 1916.

Section 28, Copyright Law, in Force July 1st, 1909.

"That any person who willfully and for profit shall infringe any copyright secured by this Act, or who shall knowingly and willfully aid or abet such infringement, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment for not exceeding one year, or a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than one thousand dollars, or both in the discretion of the Court."

Sacramento, the Capital City

(By S. Glen Andrus, Secretary-Manager Chamber of Commerce of Sacramento, Inc.)

Sacramento, "The Heart of California," and the Capital City of the State, is one of the most fortunately situated communities on the entire Pacific Coast. Geographical location and physical conformation have a great deal to do with the prosperity of cities. Applying this fact to Sacramento, one may readily see that it is destined to always be a splendid business community. It is the natural geographical and distributing center of a large portion of California's productive area. Sacramento has become a large railroad center, while its location at the junction of two rivers—the Sacramento and the American—is peculiarly fortunate. Upon the Sacramento River, which is navigable for nearly 300 miles, is now carried annually tonnage that approximates $50,000,000 in value. This amount will increase enormously as the flood-control project of the State of California is carried toward completion, thereby bringing about a continuous betterment in the channel of the river and in navigation possbilities.

A tremendous factor regarding the future development of Sacramento is that lying on either side of the Sacramento River and throughout the county and Valley there are more than three million acres of as fertile and productive land as lies out-of-doors. Extending back into the foothills are several million acres more, the grand total of foothill and valley land in the Sacramento Valley aggregating fully twelve million acres. A large part of this land is capable of irrigation by the various methods employed, there being an abundance of water available, either through the medium of the rivers or by wells. In the foothill regions are delightful locations for fruit ranches and other industries.

The vast agricultural, mineral and timber empire, of which Sacramento is the center, is what is making the Capital City and will insure its future growth. The development of the city and its growth will be exactly commensurate with the development and growth of this empire, which has been accelerated during the last five years to eight years by the investment of approximately $200,000,000 of capital in power, irrigation and reclamation projects.

Naturally, a big change has come over the appearance of the Capital City during the progress of these great undertakings. The census of 1910 gave the city 46,500 population; 1916 finds the Capital City with 73,378 population. In recent years sufficient territory has been annexed to permit of a large growth, but the communities which were joined to Sacramento were such as had grown up to the city limits.

Only a few years ago Sacramento had no first-class hotels. Today it is one of the best equipped cities on the Pacific Coast for hotel accomodations. Seven years ago there were few buildings over two or three stories in height. Today there are numerous buildings of seven and eight stories, and several of ten. During 1915 building permits proved that Sacramento was less affected than most cities by general adverse business conditions.

The immediate business future of Sacramento is exceedingly bright, especially in view of the fact that $3,000,000 worth of additional State Capitol buildings will be erected. These additional Capitol buildings will be built upon two blocks of property adjoining the present Capitol Park, the property having been purchased by the City of Sacramento, through the medium of a $700,000 bond issue and presented to the State. One of the new buildings will be among the finest library buildings in the United States, and another will house all State officials who are required by the Constitution to office in the City of Sacramento. The latter fact alone will add nearly a half million dollars to the total purchasing power of the people of the city. It is estimated that in connection with this improvement between six and seven million dollars will be expended in Sacramento in the next few years for labor, material, and other things which go into the construction of such large improvements.

Every variety of fruit, flower, tree, shrub or vine, no matter from what part of the country it comes from, will grow in Sacramento. A visit to the beautiful thirty-four-acre park surrounding the State Capitol will prove this assertion. The agricultural, horticultural and viticultural industries reach their height in Sacramento County and the Sacramento Valley.

Three transcontinental railroads enter Sacramento and approximately 150 passenger trains arrive at and depart from the city each day, over the steam and electric lines. Electric systems penetrate the surrounding territory for hundreds of miles in every direction, furnishing excellent passenger and freight service and being the means of developing much rich and fertile country.

Nothing tells of a city's growth more forcibly than do assessment valuations, building permits, postoffice receipts, bank clearings, and similar data. The following tables show the increase in these several features of the business life of Sacramento:

Assessed Valuations of Property in the City of Sacramento from 1902 to 1915, Inclusive.

Sacramento leads the fifty-eight counties of the state in the value of its agricultural products. It is the center of the greatest deciduous fruit belt in the world. Within radius of forty-five miles of Sacramento is grown seventy-five per cent of all the deciduous fruit raised in California. Fully 21,000 carloads of fresh, dried and canned fruits are shipped from the Capital City annually. This amount is increasing rapidly as the orchards planted during recent years come into bearing.

Approximately 400,000 acres of land are being farmed, the value of the property reaching to $45,000,000. The principal products are corn, oats, wheat, maize, alfalfa, green hay, beans, potatoes, beets, asparagus, tomatoes, onions, celery, hops. In fact, vegetables, berries and cereals of all kinds thrive in this soil. The deciduous fruits consist of apples, apricots, cherries, figs, nectarines, plums, prunes, peaches, pears, quinces, pomegranates, persimmons, and grapes.

Sacramento County is the natural home of all citrus fruits and the planting, therefore, of oranges, lemons and pomelos is progressing rapidly, the recent plantings now totaling more than the present acreage in bearing. Walnuts, almonds and other nuts produce heavily in Sacramento County and a good market is always available. Citrus fruits ripen from four to six weeks earlier in Sacramento County than they do in Southern California, thus admitting them to the early markets in the East. Olives thrive better in Sacramento County and in the Sacramento Valley than in any portion of California, which has a practical monopoly on pickled olives, the production of which has never yet equaled the demand.

Anyone making a careful study of conditions generally cannot fail to come to the conclusion that the future of Sacramento city and county is undimmed by any foreboding chance of disaster.

Caution

Pay no money in advance to itinerant Directory Canvassers. We are led to mention this from the fact that certain parties have been fraudulently using our publications as specimens and by that means collecting moneys in advance.

Before signing an order, see that it has the name of Sacramento Directory Co., printed thereon

We ask no payment until the work is delivered, and our solicitors have strict orders not to take payment for either advertisements or subscriptions.

SACRAMENTO DIRECTORY CO'S

DIRECTORY OF HOUSEHOLDERS 1916

In the following list, the Streets, Avenues, etc., are arranged in alphabetical order without regard to location. The number of each building on the street is given in numerical order, and opposite the number is printed the name of the householder or householders. Houses that remained vacant at the close of the canvass have the word "Vacant" printed opposite the number. Houses with no numbers are not given. To find the occupation of householder, refer to the alphabetical list of names. For location of Streets, Avenues, etc., see pages 11-14.

To phone a person whose name does not appear in the City Telephone Directory, look said person up in alphabetical section, ascertain their house number, refer to "Householders' Guide" for corresponding street and number and the householder or householders names appear, they being in phone book if there is a phone in the house. If no phone in the house neighbors on each side will be seen before and after name, also people opposite.
